

TO THE PROBLEM OF GENDER DISCRIMINATION IN PROFESSIONAL SPHERE IN RUSSIA AND KOREA

Abstract:

The article seeks to examine gender inequality in the professional sphere as an example of Russia and South Korea. As a result of our analysis, we come to the conclusion, that not only women are discriminated, as it is commonly believed in recent years, but also men. Everybody can become a victim of discrimination in wages, moving up the career ladder and in taking a job. Also, we have deduced the gender discrimination in Russia and Korea.

Gender discrimination covers a lot of spheres of our life. Nowadays society tries to erase the boundaries between men and women; nevertheless they do exist in our world. Gender gaps are distributed in sphere of access and usage of different resources, economic opportunities, authority and presentation of interests.

And we will speak about the gender discrimination in professional sphere

- These are the aim and the problems of our research.

The aim of our research is improving the understanding of importance of gender equality.

While making the research we accentuated ensuing problems:

- to research the gender discrimination in professional sphere in Russia and Korea
- to deduce the history of gender discrimination in Russia and Korea

In the course of professional adaptation for women social and psychological aspects become major, while for men a professional activity is more important. Even doing the same job, men and women have different attitudes to it.

The statistics of Russian population shows that there are more women than men and the level of women education is higher. However, the way to managerial
